The WEEKLY REGISTER: OR, UNIVERSAL JOURNAL.

LONDON, SATURDAY, November 3, 1733. NUMB. CXCI.

I Shall again proceed with my Survey of all the remarkable Structures in and about the City, as judging it may be useful to serve Part of my Readers, and entertaining to the rest.

I was gone as far as where the Conduit formerly stood in Cheapside, and, before I leave this Place, think it proper to recommend the Steeple of Foster-Lane to the Attention of the Passenger; 'tis not a glaring Pile that strikes the Eye at the first View with an Idea of Grandeur and Magnificence; but then the beautiful Pyramid it forms, and the just and well-proportion'd Simplicity of all its Parts, satisfy the Mind so effectually, that nothing seems to be wanting, and nothing can be spar'd.

Aldersgate is a Building so heavy and gothique, that it hardly deserves Notice, unless for the Sake of a Bas-Relief of King James I. which, tho' in an awkard and inelegant Taste, is yet a very tolerable Piece of Workmanship, and may challenge some Applause.

Farther down this Street, is on the Right Hand a most delightful fine Edifice that declares the masterly Hand of Inigo Jones, and was formerly the Residence of the Earls of Shaftsbury: An Edifice that deserves a much better Situation, and greater Care in preserving it from the Injuries of Time: But the Politeness of the Town is so far remov'd from hence, that 'tis hardly possible this Fabrick should be admir'd as it ought, or be kept in suitable Repair. Already it has been converted into a Tavern, and is made to serve other mechanick Uses, insomuch that the judicious Spectator at once wonders how it came to be erected there, and laments its present Decay.

The new Church in Old-street is so slight and trifling a Building, that 'tis not worth the Trouble of a Visit; for which Reason we shall chuse rather to cross over to Smithfield, neglecting the Chartreaux at the same Time, because the Building is so intirely rude and irregular, that it admits of nothing like Criticism: Its Situation indeed in the Midst of a Garden is fine, and the Square in the Front of it, is, at least, kept in better Order than most in Town.

In Smithfield, we shall see a vast Area, that is capable of great Beauty, but is, at present, destitute of all; a Scene of Filth and Nastiness, one of the most nauseous Places in the whole Town: 'Tis true, the Use which is made of it as a Market is something of an Excuse for it, and, in some Degree atones for the Want of that Decency, which would improve it so much: Yet still 'tis my Opinion that Ways and Means might be found to make it tolerable at least, and an Obelisk, Pyramid, or Statue in the Centre, defended with handsome and substantial Rails, would go a great Way in so desirable a Project.

On one Side of this irregular Place is the Entrance, not the Front, of a magnificent Hospital; in a Taste not altogether amiss, but so erroneous in Point of Proportion, that it rather offends, than entertains: But, what is still more provoking, the Building itself is intirely detach'd from the Entrance, and, tho' so near a large and noble Opening, is, in a Manner, stifled with the circumjacent Houses: 'Tis indeed a Building in a Box, or Case; and, tho' beautiful in itself, and erected at prodigious Expence, is so far from giving Pleasure to a Judge, that he would rather regret its being built at all. 'Tis certain that, where the Ground will admit of it, Publick Buildings can hardly be too grand and magnificent; but where they can't be seen, when finish'd, Use and Convenience only should be consulted, and a Pile of rough Stones from the Quarry, would answer the End, as well as the Marble of Egypt, with the Decorations of Greece or Rome.

Newgate, consider'd as a Prison, is a Structure of rather more Cost and Beauty than was necessary, because the Sumptuousness of the Out-Side, but aggravates the Misery of the Wretches within: But, as a Gate to such a City as a London, it might have receiv'd considerable Additions both of Design and Execution, and abundantly answer'd the Cost in the Reputation of the Building. The Gate of a City which is erected rather for Ornament than Use, ought to be in the Stile of the antient triumphal Arches, and, it must be allowed, that hardly any Kind of Building allowed of more Beauty or Perfection.

The Physicians College, a Structure little known, and seldom talk'd of, is a Building of wonderful Delicacy, and eminently deserves to be consider'd among the noblest Ornaments of this City; and yet, so unlucky is its Situation, that it can never be seen to Advantage, nay seldom seen at all, and what ought to be conspicuous to every Body, is known only to a few, and those too People of Curiosity who search out their own Entertainments, and don't want for the Impressions of vulgar Reports, or common Fame, to excite their Attention, or influence their Judgments.

The Hall of Justice at the Old Bailey, and indeed all the Courts I have ever yet seen in England are justly to be excepted to, as wanting that Grandeur, that Augustness, that Decency and Solemnity which ought to be inseparable from them, in order to give Men, in general, a suitable Awe for the Place, and strike Offenders with a Terror, even more forcible than the Sentence they were to undergo. The Form of a Theatre, agrees best with a Place of this Nature: That Part of the Building which is the Stage would answer exactly for the Bench, the Pit for the Council, Prisoners, &c. and the Circle round it for the Spectators: But the present Form of these Assemblies is utterly opposite to this Regularity, and, instead of representing the Whole in one grand and comprehensive View, divides it into Meanness and Confusion.

The grand Cathedral of St. Paul's is undoubtedly one of the magnificent modern Buildings in Europe; all the Parts, of which 'tis compos'd, are superlatively beautiful, and noble; the North and South Fronts, in particular, are very perfect Pieces of Architecture, neither ought the East to go without due Applause. The two Spires at the West End are in a finished Taste, and the Portico with the Ascent, and the Dome that rises in the Centre of the Whole, afford a very august and surprizing Prospect; but still, with all these Beauties, it has certainly yet more Defects; and the Pleasure we receive from the first is so much qualified and tam'd by the last, that we rather wonder how we can be pleas'd so much, than why we are displeas'd at all. But, not to condemn in the Gross, I'll take the Liberty to touch upon a few Particulars, and lay myself justly open to Censure, in case I mistake, or blame in the wrong Place.

In the first Place, therefore, there is a most notorious Deficience in Point of View; such a huge Fabrick as St. Paul's ought, at least, to be survey'd at the Distance of Temple-Bar, and the Vista ought to be considerably wider than the Front of the Building. But, this is so far from the Case here, that we can't see it till we are upon it, and this Defect is made still worse, by turning the Edifice from the Eye, even where it can be view'd, for the Sake of that ridiculous Superstition of erecting it due East and West. In the next Place the dividing the Portico, and indeed the whole Structure into two Stories on the Out-side certainly indicates at first Sight a like Division within. A Circumstance abounding with Absurdities, and defeating even the very End of erecting it at all. If indeed the Architect had been embarass'd to recon cile the Distance and Heighth of his Columns, I am humbly of Opinion that a light and proper Attick Story had answer'd all Ends both of Use and Beauty, and left him room to have enlarg'd his Imagination, and have given an Air of Majesty to the Whole: Let me add, that I apprehend the Portico should have been farther projected on the Eye, instead of retreating from it, in order to have given a grand Contraste to the whole Front, and aided the Perspective within.

I shall say no more on the Out-Side than this, that, according to my best Notions of Regularity and Order, the Dome should have been rais'd exactly in the Centre of the Whole, and that there should have been two correspondent Steeples at the East as well as at the West End, with all other suitable Decorations: If a View of the whole Length of the Building too could have been open'd down to the Water-Side, it would have added greatly to its Grandeur and Magnificence, and have afforded a most noble Prospect from off the River into the Bargain. However odd, or new the first of these Positions may seem, let any Body take a View of St. Paul's from any of the neighbouring Hills, and they will instantly discern that the Building is defective, and that the Form of a Cross is more favourable to Superstition, than Beauty: In a Word, they will easily see at least, that the Dome, in its present Circumstance, is abundantly too big for the rest of the Pile, and that the West End has no rational Pretence to finer and more splendid Decorations than the East.

As the Limits of my Paper will not suffer me to expatiate any farther on this Subject at present, I shall defer the Remainder till another Opportunity.

The Musick to be perform'd in the Royal Chapel at the Solemnity of the Princess Royal's Marriage, is now composing by Mr. Handel. The Words of the Anthem are as follow:

On Friday last at Goldsmiths-Hall the late Lord Mayor settled the Money allow'd by Act of Parliament, for apprehending and taking of Francis Crotchet, the Fishmonger at Temple Bar, as follows, viz. To Dr. Clifton, for his Charges in prosecuting, &c. 10 l. WEDNESDAY, Oct. 31.

On Thursday last a Man knock'd at the Door of one Mr. Cornel de Roman, at Paddington, who opening it himself, five Rogues more push'd in, seiz'd the old Gentleman by the Throat, swore they would murder him if he cry'd out, blind-folded him, bound him Neck and Heels, and afterwards seized the Servant-Maid, and bound her likewise; which were the only Persons then in the House, his Daughter being gone to London: Then they rifled the House of all the Money, Plate, Linnen, and other Things of Value, which they pack'd up in the Ticks of the Feather Beds, after having cut them open, and thrown all the Feathers upon the Floor: After which they went into the Cellar, where they found Wine, Brandy, Ale, &c. which they swore they would drink out, if possible, before they went, and accordingly staid in the House carousing till Three o'Clock in the Morning; in which Time five of them ravish'd the Servant-Maid, and used used the Creature most barbarously: They likewise often threatned to murder the Gentleman; but the Maid begg'd earnestly of them to murder her rather than her Master, whereby the Rogues were prevailed to spare both their Lives: At last, after having committed so much Wickedness, they went off with their Booty undiscover'd; but several Warrants are out, and diligent Search is making after them.

Yesterday being the Anniversary of his Majesty's Birth-Day, when he enter'd into the 51st Year of his Age, he receiv'd at Noon the Compliments of the Nobility, Foreign Ministers, and other Persons of Distinction. He married Anne, the Daughter and Heiress of —— Sandys, of Scroby in the County of Nottingham, Esq; by whom he had a numerous Issue.

On Monday Night last, as the Ladies were coming out from the Ball at Guildhall, and there being a great Crowd waiting for Coaches, some Fellows took the Opportunity of cutting off several of their Gown Tails, Lappets, &c. and went off with the Spoils.

Yesterday in the Afternoon, near Gray's-Inn-Lane End in Holborn, a very sad Accident happen'd to a Boy about ten Years of Age, by a mad Dog seizing his Hand as he was holding it down in walking along, and tore it in a dismal Manner. The Dog was immediately pursu'd, and kill'd before he did any further Mischief.

The same Day six Butchers belonging to St. James's-Market, in their white Wastecoats, with their Marrow-Bones and Cleavers, went to St. James's Gate, and beat a Peal; when her Majesty hearing the Noise, immediately ordered them into the Court-Yard, (the Centinels keeping the Populace out) where they beat two Peals more: Her Majesty seemed pleased with the same, and ordered them a Guinea.

On Monday last there was a Rehearsal at the Sun Tavern in King-street, Westminster, of the following Ode for his Majesty's Birth-Day, composed by Colley Cibber, Esq; Poet-Laureat to his Majesty, and set to Musick by John Eccles, Esq; Master of his Majesty's Band of Musick; and this Day was performed before their Majesties, and the rest of the Royal Family, in the Council-Chamber.

ODE for the King's Birth-Day, 1733.

AGAIN the joyous Morn,
Sacred to Cæsar born,
(O many such may rolling Years supply!)
With ample Blessings past
Fulfills the Promise of the last,
Compleat and first,
As happy Years enjoy'd can fly.

AIR.

When Laws propos'd to right the State,
Our fond misguided Fears create,
So much is our Content prefer'd,
Ere Cæsar's Rights our Fears are heard:
So when the froward fav'rite Child,
Enjoin'd its Good, will not be still'd,

The tender Parent feels its Pain,
Nor hears unmov'd his Cries complain.

Recitativo.

With equal Might our Monarch and the Sun
Through Skies and Seas their Courſe of Empire run,
Far as the fiery God his Beams extend,
The godlike George his Aid or Influence lend,
And the ſame Fruits the genial Rays produce,
Our Prince by Peace preſerves for human Uſe.

AIR.

Let Phœbus glorious Eye
Divide with Joy the Sky,
And Earth with Day ſupply:
Has leſs Great George's Glory ſtood,
When o'er the Globe below,
Wherever Winds can blow,
Or boundleſs Oceans flow,
His waſted Empire ſways the Flood?

Remember, Europe, when thy purpled Lands
With Blood of hoſtile Bands,
At once o'erflow'd and fatten'd the Plough:
How diſmal then to ſee
Thy terrible Fertility!
Where reaps the Sword, in vain the Wretched ſow,
Delightful Change! Bleſt Albion now
Outrides the Tempeſt with a ſmiling Brow.

AIR.

No hopeful Harveſt ſpoil'd
Deforms the plenteous Field,
Nor frighted Commerce dreads the Main;
While Earth and Seas conſpire
To fill Mankind's Deſire,
Nor George nor Phœbus ſhine in vain.

Recitativo.

As pleaſing is the Scene from Shore
To hear the Winds and Billows roar:
So martial Sounds from Terror free,
Aſſiſtant to your Joys ſhall be.

CHORUS.

Awake the Trumpet, beat the Brazen Drum,
And let the jovial Noiſe
Give Signal to the Bomb
And Cannons Voice;
The thund'ring Cannon to the Skies
Great George's Fame,
The Arbiter of Peace,
And Source of Albion's golden Days
Proclaim.

Marriage. Some Days ago William Robinſon, of Wrexham in Denbighſhire, Eſq; was married to his Firſt Couſin, one of the Daughters of the late Robinſon Lytton, of Nebworth in Hertfordſhire, Eſq; a young Lady of 15,000l. Fortune.

THURSDAY, Nov. 1.

His Majeſty has been pleas'd to promiſe his moſt gracious Pardon, as alſo a Reward of 50l. to any Perſon concern'd in the late Robbery, and inhuman Treatment, of Cornel Des Romans at Paddington, that ſhall make Diſcovery of their Accomplices, ſo as they may be brought to Juſtice.

The Boarded Walk from his Majeſty's Privy Chamber croſs the Garden, and to the French Chapel, is covered with Scarlet Bays, three Seats on a Side, and 12 Foot in the Clear to walk on: The Walk is 400 Yards long, every Poſt ſtands four Yards aſunder on both Sides: Every Poſt is to be illuminated with a Sconce and Light; ſo that it appears there will be 200 Sconces: The Covering takes up 10,000 Yards of Bays, and the Cieling is painted white.

Yeſterday Morning Sir Philip York, late Attorney-General, was made a Serjeant at Law, and in the Afternoon he received his Commiſſion as Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's-Bench, in the room of the Lord Raymond, deceaſed, and was accompanied by Sir Robert Walpole and other Perſons of Diſtinction at Dinner in Serjeant's-Inn-Hall, Fleet-ſtreet.

Laſt Tueſday Night, at the End of Friday ſtreet, Cheapſide, as a Man was lighting a Lamp, a Hackney Coachman ran againſt his Ladder, and broke it in two, and the Coach ran over the Man's Body, and bruiſed him in ſuch a Manner, that his Life is in Danger.

Laſt Tueſday Night Mrs. Griffis, at the Cow-houſe by Hyde-Park, made a Bargain with two of her Men, that ſhe would give them a Leg of Mutton weighing eleven Pounds, if they would eat it at one Meal, with two Bunches of Turneps buttered; if not, to forfeit 5 s. They devoured it in leſs than an Hour and an Half. The Occaſion of this was, that theſe two Men eat a Bullock's Heart ſtuffed with Garlick and Onions the Night before, that weighed ſeven Pounds, and they ſaid they could have eat as much more.

Robbery. On Saturday laſt in the Afternoon, a Perſon, handſomely dreſs'd, came into Apothecaries-Hall, and after a very ſhort Stay, took an Opportunity of carrying off a Bag of Silver, wherein was 30l.

FRIDAY, Nov. 2.

Yeſterday the Lords of the Admiralty received a Letter by the Holland Mail from Sir Charles Hardy, dated at Helvoetſluys laſt Saturday, with Advice that the Prince of Orange came on board the Fubbs Yacht at that Place the Day before, but could not put to Sea for Want of a Wind.

Orders have been ſent to the Maſters-Builders of his Majeſty's Yards at Portſmouth, Plymouth and Chatham, for Docking of ſeveral Ships of War in thoſe Ports, in order to their being put into Commiſſion; and we hear that a Fleet, conſiſting of 20 Sail of the Line, will be fitted out, to ſail for the Mediterranean, under the Command of an Admiral.

On Tueſday laſt an elderly Man, a Penſioner in Greenwich-Hoſpital, cut his Throat, which occaſion'd his Death. And Yeſterday the Coroner's Inqueſt ſat on his Body, and brought in their Verdict Lunacy.

Gibraltar, Sept. 24. The Spaniſh Fleet is at Alicant, conſiſting of 15 large Men of War, two Bomb-Veſſels, two Fire-Ships, a Tender, and ſeveral Barks with Stabling; and they expect to be joined by five Spaniſh Men of War more, and three Malteze. They wait for Orders to embark 23 Battalions of Foot, ſome Horſe and Dragoons, which Troops are all ready in the Neighbourhood of Alicant; and as is reported, if the Troops are ordered on board, the Fleet is to ſail and land them at Legborn, where they will be joined by another Body of Troops, and march directly to Naples, and attack that Place, in caſe of a War between the French and the Emperor. We are very much afraid of a Rupture between the Emperor of Morocco and England, but hope our Court will take Care to have the new Difference made up ſoon, elſe it will go very hard with us, we being intirely ſubſiſted with all our freſh Proviſions from Barbary; and if our Court does not take ſpeedy Care to pleaſe thoſe People, I am afraid the Trade of England and Ireland up the Streights will be very much interrupted, and ſuffer by the Sallee Rovers and Tangier Row-Boats. The Tetuans took a London Ship about a Month ago, and carried her to Tangier, where ſhe lies. Our Governor wrote to the Baſhaw of Tangier, who acquainted him, that he had written to the King his Maſter to have his Commands about the Delivery of the Ship; but he had not received any Anſwer, ſo he could not do any Thing until Orders came. It is much feared the Ship will not be releaſed till that King has an Ambaſſador ſent from our King, it being what the Barbary King expects, and a Preſent ſent him.

We hear that the Hon. John King, Eſq; eldeſt Son of the Lord Chancellor, Repreſentative in Parliament for Launceſton in Cornwall, will ſtand a Candidate at the next Election for the City of Exeter, he being invited by a great Number of Voters.

Robberies. On Tueſday about Seven o'Clock in the Evening, a young Gentlewoman was attack'd in Berwick-ſtreet, Soho, by a Youth, who pull'd out a large Cafe-Knife, and demanded her Money, &c. ſwearing, that if ſhe offer'd to reſiſt, he would cut her Throat that Moment; upon which ſhe deliver'd her Purſe, wherein was two Guineas and ſome Silver.——On Wedneſday Night Capt. Mickleſield, formerly Commander of a Ship in the Eaſt-India Company's Service, was attack'd by a ſingle Highwayman near the Nag's-Head in the Road to Hackney, who took from him a Watch and ſome Silver.

Commitment. On Wedneſday Night laſt the Houſe of Mr. Stone, one of his Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace for the City and Liberty of Weſtminſter, was broke open, but the Perſons being diſcovered, two of the Accomplices were ſecured, and being carried before a Magiſtrate, they were committed to Newgate.

Marriages. On Wedneſday laſt the Right Hon. the Lord Gower was married to the Lady Atkins, Relict of Sir Henry Atkins, Bart. and one of the Daughters of Sir John Stonehouſe, Bart. deceas'd, late Knight of the Shire for the County of Berks.——Yeſterday Dudley Ryder, Eſq; Member of Parliament for St. Germains, was married to Miſs Newnham, eldeſt Daughter of Mr. Newnham of Streatham.

Deaths. A few Days ſince died Major John Webb, Governor of Upnor-Caſtle, and the other Forts on the River Medway; alſo Store-keeper of the King's Magazine of Powder at Upnor-Caſtle, and one of his Majeſty's Juſtices of the Peace for the County of Kent.——Laſt Week died, at his Houſe at Tottenham, the Rev. Mr. Thomas Davis, who ſome Time ſince aſſum'd the Name of Povey, coming then poſſeſs'd of an Eſtate of 1500l. per Annum, formerly belonging to Sir Ralph Povey, of Stow, in Cambridgeſhire. He was Rector of Little Hollingbury, in Eſſex, worth about 200l. per Annum. His laſt Wife, to whom he was married about three Years ſince, was one of the Daughters of Sir John Shaw, late of Cheſhunt, Bart. by whom he has left one Daughter.

The following is the MANIFESTO publiſh'd by the King of Sardinia, containing his Reaſons for taking Part againſt the Emperor, viz.

Charles Emanuel, by the Grace of God, King of Sardinia, Cyprus and Jeruſalem, Duke of Savoy, &c. to all our dutiful and loving Subjects, greeting.

IT has ever been the principal Object of our Care, to preſerve the Peace and Tranquility of our People, without paying any Conſideration to, nay, often in direct Prejudice of our own perſonal Intereſts, and thoſe of our Royal Houſe. We have not once loſt Sight of a Means ſo juſt and ſalutary; nor are we leſs preſent mentionable to the Welfare of our Subjects. We ſhould ſtill have cherish'd Peace in our Territories, was not the Exceſs of Power in the Houſe of Auſtria become dangerous, and had it not been employ'd to the manifeſt Prejudice of Europe, in forcing violently from her Arms the olive Branch the enjoy'd. WHEREFORE we have enter'd into an Alliance with France; an Alliance, become neceſſary, in order to eſtabliſh the Peace of Europe upon a more equal Balance. And this we have thought proper to make known to you, being minded to give you the moſt eſſential Proofs of our Affection; as alſo to declare to you, the Confidence we have of your Duty and Love to our Royal Perſon on ſo important an Occaſion. And we doubt not but you take this Opportunity to give the World a new and conſpicuous Proof of your Zeal and Ardour to approve ourſelves, and therein to give us a new Motive to purſue the Reſolutions we have taken, to make your Satisfaction and Advantage the ſole Aim of our Actions. For the reſt, we pray God take you into his holy Care, &c.

FOREIGN NEWS.

From the Imperial Camp on the Frontiers of the Upper Palatinate of Bavaria, October 25.

THE Imperial Army having obtain'd Leave of the Elector of Bavaria to paſs thro' his Territories, proceeds Tomorrow on its March, in order to arrive with all Diligence at Neurenberg, where it will be re-inforc'd with ſeveral Regiments of the Emperor's, and others belonging to the Empire; after which the Army is to march towards the Rhine in Queſt of the Enemy, and ſtop the Progreſs of the French in the Empire. It is not doubted but when the Imperial Army is compleat, and at Hand to ſuccour the Countries moſt expoſ'd, all the Germanick Body will act in concert with the Emperor to drive the Enemy out of the Empire. The Count de Merci is at the Head of a conſiderable Body of Troops, marching to the Succour of the Milaneſe, and we hope will be there in Time to prevent the Loſs of any of the principal Places of that Dutchy.

Warſaw, Oct. 24. The Ruſſian General has laid this City under a Contribution of Proviſions for the Subſiſtence of the Troops quarter'd here, and the Country round us for thoſe encamp'd without. The Ruſſians have croſs'd the Viſtula, to the Number of 10000 Men. 4500 Dragoons are now waiting on the other Side for a Paſſage, but the reſt are to continue in Lithuania. The Confederates are greatly divided amongſt themſelves. Prince Lubomirſki is retir'd to his own Eſtate.

Dantzick, Oct. 29. The Crown Army and the Nobility on Horſeback, to the Number of 25000 Men, are poſted near Marienburg, to hinder the Ruſſians from penetrating into Poliſh Pruſſia.

Hamburgh, Oct. 30. The Election of the Elector of Saxony to the Crown of Poland having been notified to the Magiſtracy, the Syndic repair'd immediately to the Saxon Reſident, and after having complimented him on the Occaſion, made him the cuſtomary Preſent, conſiſting of Wine of Honour. Our Letters from Petersburg mention, that ſeveral Hords of Tartars have poſted themſelves from Choczim to the Fortreſs of Bialacerkiew belonging to Poland.

Paris, Oct. 26. The News of a ſecond Election made in Poland the 5th Inſtant, in Favour of the Elector of Saxony, was not publickly known here till Friday laſt. At the ſame Time, ſeveral Particularities of that ſecond Election were bandied about, to ſhew that it is null, and that it cannot in the leaſt invalidate the Right of King Staniſlaus to the Throne. We ſtill flatter ourſelves, that that Prince will be effectually ſupported; and that it will not be long before he gets the better of all his Enemies. It is certain, that in order to effect this, the Court depends upon Reſources which are yet behind the Curtain; but which, when the Curtain is drawn (and that they ſay will happen when leaſt expected) will ſtrike the World with Amazement. We hear it confidently affirmed, that the Army of the Crown already conſiſts of 30,000 Polanders, beſides 20,000 Lithuanians, and the Peaſants who are perpetually haraſſing the Muſcovite Troops. It is added, that a conſiderable Body of Tartars will make a Diverſion in Ruſſia; and that the Grand Seignior will likewiſe ſend an Army into Poland, if the Muscovites do not make Haste out.

Some Letters from the Rhine insinuate, that the Marshal Duke of Berwick is to leave a sufficient Number of Troops before Fort Kelb, to finish the Reduction of that Place; and to march with 50,000 Men, divided into two Bodies, some say through the Black Forest into Bavaria, others into Saxony, and a third Sort imagine he will go in Quest of the Imperial Army. Our Troops on that Side are in no Want, the Country-People bringing them Plenty of every Thing.

We have certain Advice, that the greatest Part of the King's Troops are arrived in the Plain of Turin; that the rest are actually upon their March thither; and that when they are all together, and have passed in Review before the King of Sardinia, they are to march directly to Novarra and Tortona, to possess themselves of those two Places, and then to go to Milan without stopping. The Marshal de Villars set out for Italy Yesterday, with Monsieur de Contade: That General, old as he is, is very healthy and vigorous; and when he took Leave of the King, told his Majesty, that he hoped his Troops would hear Midnight Mass at Milan on Christmas Eve.

Such is the Ardour of the French Nation at this Day to be knocked on the Head, that the Surgeon's Apprentices travelling to the Army in Italy, considering they had no Chance for it, sell out among themselves, and to Work they went. Eight of them were killed upon the Spot, to shew their Prowess, and a much greater Number were desperately wounded.

Letters from Spain advise, that his Catholick Majesty's Fleet had received Orders to sail with the Land-Forces on board; so that we reckon they are by this Time upon the Coast of Italy.

It is certain, on the other Hand, that all the King's Ships are vamping up, and others new building, in the different Ports of this Kingdom; his Majesty being determined to have a Fleet of 50 Men of War at Sea early in the Spring.

Hague, Oct. 31. The Arrival of Mr. Walpole here was at first a small Surprize to us, but that Surprize soon gave Way; and he had hardly finish'd his first Conference, before his Presence was congratulated as critical and quite satisfactory. That Gentleman took up his Residence with his Excellency Mr. Finch. His first Business was to pay his Compliment to the Prince of Orange, and receive those of the Foreign Ministers, and other Persons of Distinction. We do not take upon us to be acquainted with the private Part of his Commission; but have obsesv'd, that the Behaviour of certain great People towards the Emperor's Ambassador is wonderfully softned since his being here. Count Sinzendorff had in vain made every Attempt to gain the Attention of their High Mightinesses; he found that neither Rhetorick could persuade, nor Entreaty move, nor Importunity prevail, That able Minister left nothing unsaid, nothing undone; their High Mightinesses were deaf, they heard him not, a Neutrality was the Answer given to all Questions; did he urge their own Interest, his Interest, any Body's Interest, a Neutrality was still the Reply: When at Length his Excellence resolv'd on a new Essay; he demanded a Conference, he therein left not unobserv'd, what Hazards the Ballance of Europe was expos'd to. He forgot not to set before them the Dangers of the Emperor his Master; and how these Dangers affected them. He represented that the Interest of his Imperial Majesty and the Republick were inseparable; and then added with an Emphasis, that he could not undertake to assure them but what the Emperor would sooner or later resent their Behaviour to him.

This Speech had an Effect, but a contrary one to its Design; Mynheer Fagel rose up upon it, and cry'd out; That the Love of Peace in the Rulers of a Nation was the surest Mark of their Esteem towards the People; that to engage sometimes in a necessary War, imply'd likewise a Regard for the Security of the Subject, but that only Infants could be intimidated by Threats. We glory, adds that Gentleman, in the Friendship of his Imperial Majesty: We wish the Continuance of it with Ardour: And we hope the Zeal we shew'd in the late War will not be very soon forgot by him. We made the most pressing Instances to that Prince to strengthen the Barrier, it was not done; and that France did not take the Advantage of it was a Miracle. We thought by accepting the Neutrality offer'd us, we did more than gain a Security to ourselves, we even hop'd thereby to have advanc'd the Emperor's Service more than by sending 20000 Men into the Field; and if at Length we are forced to take up Arms, it will be only to enable ourselves to procure a good Peace the sooner.
